Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the proposed antitrust settlement with Microsoft will have little effect in stopping Microsoft's monopolistic practices. The proposal seems to have a loophole for each proposed remedy. Microsoft has not changed its behavior since being found guilty of monopolistic practices. In fact, Microsoft has become more brazen. Microsoft seems to realise that the proposed settlement will not affect their current business practices.

I believe the proposed antitrust settlement will have to be much more specific to have any effect on Microsoft.
